IKE GAINS MAJOR 110-VOTE VICTORY

Gen. MacArthur Scores Democrats For 'Tragic Blunders'

Pennsylvania Bloc Favors Rule Change

Chicago, (AP) — Pennsylvania, known for "missing the boat" at past Republican conventions, was right at the helm yesterday in the first test of strength in the 1952 convention.

The Pennsylvanians voted 57 to 11 at a morning caucus to back the so-called "fair play" change in convention rules on eligibility of contested delegates.

And yesterday afternoon, the Pennsylvania delegation cast a 57-13 vote that provided more than a third of the 110-vote margin by which the convention rejected a Taft-sponsored proposal.

Gov. John S. Fine took a vigorous part in both decisions, to the obvious delight of Eisenhower backers both within and outside the delegation.

Sen. James H. Duff, who wasn't talking much about the situation, displayed one of the broadest grins anywhere in sight during the caucus and the convention proceedings.

And Sen. Henry Lodge, of Massachusetts, national Eisenhower chairman, came down from the platform to shake hands with Fine after the Governor's announcement of the Keystone State vote had been greeted with a roar of approval.

Nevertheless Fine still was not disclosing his choice for the presidential candidate. He said that would be done in due time, but wouldn't say when.

Once again there was no all-out challenge to Fine's leadership of the delegation.

Calling the caucus to order yesterday morning after a breakfast get-together, he said he felt it imperative for the good of the party in November that the "fair play" amendment be adopted to bar contested delegates from voting on the eligibility of other contested delegates.

Fine said he would cast his own vote for the amendment, and then proceeded to guide the caucus through a tense 90-minute session to the showdown rollcall.

That came on a motion from Philip Sharpless, an alternate from Philadelphia, state GOP finance chairman, who warned he had been told it would be "somewhere between difficult and impossible to raise money in Pennsylvania" next Fall unless the change were adopted.

Backers of Sen. Robert A. Taft tried to the end to delay the test. Joseph N. Pew, longtime party leader, suggested that Pennsylvania postpone a vote "until we learn the facts" by casting 35 votes "on either side."

That aside, saying he felt an affirmative stand must be taken immediately to break down any lack of confidence on the part of the public.

Sen. Edward Martin, who didn't suggest any action and who left the caucus before voting time, asked Fine whether adoption of such a change might not cripple a future convention. Fine commented that it seemed "ridiculous" to anticipate such a possibility, and that it was a matter of present justice without concern for future remote possibilities.

And National Committeeman G. Mason Owlett also pleaded for a delay, relating at length how he had watched the committee study the contests last week and reach its decision. Fine replied that he is "afraid the public has the thought there has been an attempt to do an inequity or injustice against a candidate for president," and the party must act to erase that impression.

When the roll of the delegation was called, only Owlett, Pew, Mrs. Gaynell Dixon of Butler; State Sen. Ed Watson of Bucks County; Chester Muhlenberg and George Giles of Reading; Robert F. Rich of Woolrich; Roy McKenna, Latrobe; Charles H. Allan, Reynoldsville; Ernest Hillman, Pittsburgh; and Harry M. Jones, McKeesport voted against the amendment.

Two delegates, Emert Brumbaugh, Claysburg, and Andrew Bingham, New Brighton, passed up the opportunity to vote. Brumbaugh later told Sen. Duff he had changed his mind and would vote for the amendment. House Speaker Herbert Sorg, acting as Sen. Martin's alternate, voted for the change.

Platform Committee Labors Over Civil Rights After Agreement On Foreign Policy Plank

By Ovid A. Martin
Chicago, (AP)—Republican platform builders worked yesterday at hewing out a civil rights plank agreeable to both Northern and Southern segments of the GOP after nailing down a harmony statement on foreign policy.

Both major candidates for the party's presidential nomination—Sen. Robert A. Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower—gave their unqualified approval to the proposed foreign policy plank.

This plank takes a swat at the way the Roosevelt-Truman administrations have conducted foreign affairs, and promises to take more aggressive and effective measures to strengthen the free world in efforts to thwart Communist aggression.

Sen. Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the 106-member Resolutions Committee, reported that a drafting subcommittee had completed work on planks covering such other matters as Communism and corruption, taxation, aid to agriculture, labor, veterans affairs, small business and economic affairs.

Planks yet in the construction process, besides civil rights, included national defense, social security and governmental operations.

A resolutions subcommittee on civil rights, unable to agree, turned in two reports. One, backed by a majority and representing the views of delegates from Northern and Western states, proposed a federal agency to seek end of racial discrimination through educational and persuasive measures.

Another, backed by Southern delegates, would declare the racial problem to be one for local and state agencies to handle—not the federal government.

Millikin hoped to work out a stand acceptable to both sides.

At any rate, this issue loomed as a possible clear-cut one between the Republicans and Democrats in the Fall campaign. President Truman is insisting that his party endorse a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) with power to punish those who were found guilty of discrimination against racial groups in employment of workers.

It was quite clear the Republicans will not go this far, and many Democrats favor a more moderate approach than Truman's.

Information that Eisenhower and Taft had approved the text of the foreign policy plank was supplied by John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs expert who has acted as a mediator in working out principles acceptable to both. Taft later told newsmen he considered the plank an effective one.

Text of all the planks were being guarded carefully to prevent their being leaked for publication ahead of the time the committee chooses to make them public.

Truck Crash Sets Power Pole Afire

Kresgeville—Damages of $1,250 were caused when a truck snapped off a power pole at 4:50 p.m. yesterday about two miles east of here on Route 209.

The pole carried a transformer and a high tension line carrying 7,200 volts.

The pole snapped in the middle and the top half toppled to the ground. The high tension wire evidently set the wooden cross-arm afire, and the wire dangled near the fire of the vehicle.

The fire had spread to the rest of the shattered end of the pole by the time the West End Fire Co. arrived, according to Brodheadville State police. Because of the possibility of electrocution, firemen could not play a stream of water on the burning pole until a Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. emergency crew arrived and severed the wires.

Police said the truck-trailer was operated by Harold Coon, 47, of Bloomsburg. The vehicle was owned by A. J. Perzian Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

The driver told police he was going west about 30 miles an hour when an oncoming car forced him off the road.

Coon pulled off onto the shoulder to avoid a crash, he said. His vehicle slid toward a ravine at the side of the road. The driver gunned his engine to gather speed and steer out of the ditch, but the heavy vehicle slid in and snapped the power pole.

The other car did not stop, the driver said.

Coon suffered only a slight bump on the right leg, police said.

Damages were $750 to the vehicle, and $500 to the pole and transformer.

Eynon Critical

Harrisburg, (AP)—Harrisburg Hospital last night reported Benjamin G. Eynon, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers, in critical condition after a heart attack.

When the roll of the delegation was called, only Owlett, Pew, Mrs. Gaynell Dixon of Butler; State Sen. Ed Watson of Bucks County; Chester Muhlenberg and George Giles of Reading; Robert F. Rich of Woolrich; Roy McKenna, Latrobe; Charles H. Allan, Reynoldsville; Ernest Hillman, Pittsburgh; and Harry M. Jones, McKeesport voted against the amendment.

Two delegates, Emert Brumbaugh, Claysburg, and Andrew Bingham, New Brighton, passed up the opportunity to vote. Brumbaugh later told Sen. Duff he had changed his mind and would vote for the amendment. House Speaker Herbert Sorg, acting as Sen. Martin's alternate, voted for the change.

Congress Adds Billion To Atomic Program, Adjourns

Washington, (AP)—The 82nd Congress adjourned last night, subject to recall by President Truman, after voting to add nearly a billion dollars for a huge long-range expansion of the nation's atomic weapons program.

The House quit at 6:28 p. m.; the Senate wound up its business 13 minutes later.

In rapid-fire succession, first the Senate and then the House approved bills to:

One—Provide $11,793,776,339 to finance atomic expansion, foreign aid and military construction around the world.

Two—Provide more than half a billion dollars for river, harbor and flood control projects.

With these last two bills cleared, the chambers sealed action on six months of bitter debate by shouting to adjourn sine die—that is, without naming the date to meet again. That meant Congress could meet again this year only at the call of President Truman.

A drive to adjourn last Saturday was stopped short in the early hours of Sunday by failure to agree on the two big money measures.

Congress then recessed until noon yesterday, when administration leaders renewed the adjournment push.

In the House, there were some complaints against leaving the sole authority up to the President to reconvene the lawmakers in the event of an emergency.

Only a handful of legislators were present in both chambers for the final hours of the 1952 session. Most Republicans were attending the GOP National Convention in Chicago, and many Democrats had also left town.

By voice vote, the Senate and House quickly accepted the recommendation of a Senate-House conference committee to raise the figure for atomic weapons expansion from two billion dollars to $2,898,000,000.

Funds for the atomic program were contained in a big omnibus bill which also provided funds for foreign aid and military construction.

Portland, Me., (AP)—Quadruplets weighing a total of 16 pounds, 14 ounces and so rugged that all were out of incubators nine hours after their birth, were born yesterday to a carpenter's buxom, 35-year-old wife.

Two of Mrs. Elizabeth Pinkham's infants were taken from their incubators six hours after arrival.

Gerald M. Kelley, Osteopathic Hospital administrator, said the infants and their 160-pound, 5 feet 9 mother were doing fine.

The major concern of the mother and father—45-year-old Silas Pinkham—was housing for their brood. But he's a carpenter and plans to add to his two-room home.

The births were normal, said Dr. Edwin E. Morse, 40, who made the deliveries unassisted.

MacArthur's keynote scorched the Truman administration on domestic and foreign politics alike.

It was President Truman who fired him more than a year ago as supreme commander in the Far East.

In his address last night MacArthur predicted victory for the Republicans in "the coming crusade to rechart the nation's course toward peace and security and prosperity" through "a reformation of its will and faith."

"Therein," he cried, "lies the Republican party's challenge to leadership."

"Our people," MacArthur said, "are desperate for a plan which will revive hope and restore faith as they feel the oppressive burden of the tax levy upon every source of revenue and upon every property transaction; as they see the astronomically rising public debt heavily mortgaging the industry, the well-being and the opportunity of our children and our children's children; as they observe the rising costs of the necessities of life impairing the effectiveness of pensions, insurance and other fixed incomes and reducing the aged and infirm to appalling circumstances."

Stays Neutral In Ike-Taft Controversy

by Ed Creagh

Convention Hall, Chicago (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the old soldier who didn't fade away after all, set the Republicans on fire last night with call for a mighty all-party crusade against making America "a socialist or even later a communistic state."

The five-star general of the Army set off a long wild ovation when he came before the strife-torn Republican National Convention to flay the Democrats for "tragic blunders" leading the nation, he said, toward a third world war.

MacArthur stayed officially neutral in the fight between Sen. Robert A. Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidential nomination. But he took some swipes at policies with which Eisenhower has been identified.

His keynote speech of the already turbulent National Convention struck two main chords:

One—The Democratic party has been captured by schemers who are wrecking the American standard of living, making world conquest easy for the Russians, and setting this nation's course "unerringly toward the socialist regimentation of a totalitarian state."

Two—The Republicans have a golden opportunity in the November election to enlist Americans with no distinction of race, creed or political affiliation in a crusade for peace, prosperity and tranquility.

And, said MacArthur solemnly, the Republicans will do it—"so help us God!"

The general came before the second session of the Republicans' split nominating convention with political overtones crackling around him.

Though he insists he wants no office himself, he has been mentioned as a possible compromise candidate for the presidency should Taft and Eisenhower knock each other out. He's also been talked of as a vice-presidential candidate should Taft win the top spot on the ticket.

MacArthur has declared his support of Taft and has lashed out indirectly at Eisenhower.

But in the text of his address as delivered before he spoke, MacArthur carefully avoided taking sides in the nomination fight between the two top contenders.

He did, however, blast some policies with which Eisenhower was associated during and after World War II.

In particular he hit at what he called the administration's "pattern of security agreements."

These, he said, have divided the world into armed camps and have left this country dependent on the foreign policies and diplomatic moves of its allies "without as yet having mounted either the will or the physical power to successfully meet aggression."

Eisenhower is a champion of collective security and until recently headed the combined West European defense force in Europe.

Taft has urged reliance on development of U. S. air power and has contended too much on ground troops depend too much on ground troops.

MacArthur's keynote scorched the Truman administration on domestic and foreign politics alike.

It was President Truman who fired him more than a year ago as supreme commander in the Far East.

In his address last night MacArthur predicted victory for the Republicans in "the coming crusade to rechart the nation's course toward peace and security and prosperity" through "a reformation of its will and faith."

Michigan, with 46 votes, was 45 to 1 for Eisenhower.

Contested Delegates Barred From Voting Until Seated

by Douglas B. Cornell

Convention Hall, Chicago (AP)—Eisenhower forces smashed their way to a drama-packed victory at the opening session of the Republican National Convention yesterday and staked out a jubilant claim to the GOP presidential nomination.

The Taft camp hotly disputed the claim, insisting their man was still a sure winner.

By a 558 to 548 vote, the convention sided with Eisenhower in a vital, preliminary test on the issue of seating contested delegations. Then it adopted by acclamation a new rule which bars 68 contested delegates—Taft men in large part—from voting on the seating of delegations until their own seating disputes have been decided.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower promptly called this "heartening news to millions of Americans." He said it shows the Republican party will deserve to win the November election. He said the people would have confidence the Republicans would "lead the country to a rebirth of political honesty, courage and vision."

The two major camps put opposite interpretations on the result.

"The vote on the rule this afternoon practically guarantees my nomination," said Sen. Robert A. Taft in a statement. "The hard core of 548 delegates who voted with us on the rule is within 56 votes of a majority," Taft said, adding he had been assured of the votes of more than that number of delegates who felt they should vote with the Eisenhower camp "on a procedural question."

Eisenhower's campaign manager said the defeat handed to backers of Sen. Robert A. Taft in the first test of strength in the convention means "victory on about the third ballot" in the presidential nominating sweepstakes.

That was Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., of Massachusetts speaking.

Taft forces disputed his claim. They said the ballot on the rules change by no means brought out the full strength of the Ohio senator will show on the first ballot when the voting starts later in the week on the party nomination.

"I feel sure," said Thomas E. Coleman, Taft floor manager, "we will have more than 548 on the first ballot, which I think is about as high as anybody has had in recent history."

Yet there was no question that the general turned politician had received a boost, both in votes and psychological impact, in his run for the big prize of the convention.

There were tie-ups in yesterday's showdown vote, and elsewhere, that large segments of key delegations may be on Eisenhower's team when the decision comes.

Michigan, Pennsylvania and Maryland went heavily, and California solidly, with Eisenhower in the test vote.

And Gov. Theodore R. McKelvin, Maryland's favorite son, announced he has been asked to place Eisenhower's name in nomination. That means he will turn loose on the first ballot the 24 Maryland votes pledged to him on a favorite son basis.

Maryland lined up 19 to 5 against Taft yesterday.

Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, obviously leaning toward the Eisenhower cause, still wasn't coming right out and stating a preference.

He had said Sunday that an Eisenhower win by 100 or more votes on the delegate seating issue would point the way to Eisenhower's nomination. But now, he told a reporter:

"It's a little different situation, and things are kind of mixed up. I'll have to study the result before I can comment."

Pennsylvania threw 57 votes to the general's cause today, 13 to Taft.

Michigan, with 46 votes, was 45 to 1 for Eisenhower.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New

Lady Senator In Race For Nomination

Chicago (AP)—A movement was under way yesterday to nominate U. S. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine for the vice presidency on the Republican ticket.

This would be the first time in history that a woman's name won consideration for the nation's second highest office by a major political party.

The move has the consent of Sen. Smith, who is serving her first term in the Senate after eight years in the House.

The plan is an aftermath of action taken by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at its recent convention in Boston, Mass.

"That convention endorsed the 'veep' nomination of Mrs. Smith on the Republican ticket, and Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas, Tex., a past president of the federation, on the Democratic ticket."

Mrs. Isabella J. Jones, delegate from Pennsylvania, was named head of a special committee set up by the federation to "get things going" at the Republican convention.

York said he was more confident than ever now that it will be Eisenhower, on the second ballot.

While New York was 95 to one for Eisenhower yesterday, Dewey wasn't willing to say that it will split the same way on the presidential nomination.

The test yesterday at a cheering-jeering curtain raising for the 25th GOP National Convention came on what was—in itself—a relatively minor issue. It involved the seating on only seven Louisiana delegates.

But when they lost on that, Taft forces gave up and let the Eisenhower camp walk away with the change in convention rules it wanted.

The new rule provides that unless a disputed delegation has been approved by a two-thirds vote of the National Committee, it cannot vote on convention seating contests until its own seating dispute has been settled. Such disputes are settled first in the convention Credentials Committee and then in the convention itself.

The new rule "freezes" 68 contested delegates from Georgia, Louisiana and Texas until the convention determines who should represent those states.

The Eisenhower camp put what they called their "fair play" amendment across in a feuding, fiery convention whose preliminary skirmishes have split the party into warring factions.

Desperate attempts at compromise had failed in long meetings of Eisenhower-Taft lieutenants.

Williams Votes With Majority

The 13th District's B. K. Williams was still on the fence last night and not sure whether he'd tumble into Ike or Taft's backyard.

Nothing new in the way of possible candidates appeared to be shaping up at the convention, as far as the Stroudsburg man could see . . . or hear.

"Things are still very much upset," he said. "I just came off the convention floor and up to the room (at the Congress Hotel)."

"The Taft people seem to feel they're in on the first or second ballot."

"But the Eisenhower people think Ike can get it on the fourth or fifth ballot."

Williams said he was no closer than he was 24 hours earlier to making up his mind which way he'd vote.

He had no ideas on which way Gov. John S. Fine was leaning, and said the Pennsylvania delegates he'd talked to didn't know either—were not even, in fact, making any predictions.

The Pennsylvania delegates—Williams among them—caused in their hotel room at 8 a.m. There was "no talk" of which candidate to back, Williams said.

The caucus centered solely around the question of seating delegates, he added.

The wind-up was a "22-to-13" vote against the seating of contested delegates "until all the convention delegates could vote on the subject." (AP listed the vote as 11-57).

There was no State pattern discernible in the vote, Williams said. The minority was scattered throughout the State's districts.

Williams said he voted with the majority.

Although Williams would not commit himself on which candidate he favored, his vote aided the Ike forces in winning a major victory by defeating the Taft-backed amendment to their proposal for changing the convention rules.

Kenneth F. Kressler, the other 13th District delegate, voted the same way Williams did.

Williams was reached by The Daily Record after the convention recessed at suppertime. He said that after MacArthur's speech, scheduled for later in the evening, he was sure "things would get a lot clearer."

The delegate expressed the feeling that there was a lot of underground, behind-scenes work going on, and that much of it would come "out in the open" after the keynote speech was made.

Like most of the Pennsylvania delegates, Williams spent most of the day on the hectic, swarming floor. Fortunately, he said, the much-touted air conditioning system installed for the convention is up to snuff and the only excessive heat was verbal.

The convention city's hotels are brimming, their lobbies choked with the sightseers and politicians from across the nation who are attending the big Republican show.

Williams said he has eaten his meals in the hotel, and the quality of the food hasn't slipped. "It's wonderful."

When it comes to getting around—up or down, rather—it's a different matter, Williams said. Elevators in the hotel are working constantly, but because of the crowds, it's still a minimum 10-minute wait to get aboard one.

Danes Turn Over
Tanker To Russia

Copenhagen, Denmark (AP)—Denmark officially turned over a sleek new tanker to Russia yesterday in defiance of American threats to cut off U. S. military aid.

Soviet Minister to Denmark Mikhail Vetrov proudly watched the hoisting of the red flag of Russia aboard the 13,000-ton tanker Apsheron at the very moment the worried-looking U. S. ambassador, Mrs. Eugene Anderson, called at the Foreign Office to receive Denmark's rejection of the American protest.

Informed officials in Washington indicated that the government probably will decide it must continue to bolster this nation.

WOMAN ON THE WING—The first woman to "solo" at the East Stroudsburg airport since four years ago is believed to be Mrs. Ann Heller, Stroudsburg RD3. Mrs. Heller finds time to attend to her duties as a housewife (she's Mrs. Raymond Heller) and her interest in aviation. After taking flying lessons with airport manager Hal Hamlen, Mrs. Heller went up on her first "solo" flight Monday morning at 7:30. (She flew a Piper Cub plane.) (Daily Record Photo)

Few Crashes Occur During Long Holiday

Monroe County emerged in comparatively good shape from the holiday weekend.

No one was reported burned by fireworks (illegal in the State). No one was reported drowned while escaping the heat and enjoying a swim or boat ride.

Over Friday, Saturday and Sunday there were a total of eight accidents—an not an excessive number for even an ordinary summer weekend.

One of those accidents was a fatality—but this was an exceptional case which could not be attributed to holiday traffic.

The fatality was that of 26-month-old Roger Meixsell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale G. Meixsell, Saylorsburg R.D.I., injured fatally when the family car rolled over his body.

Brodheads State police said a friend of the family, young Ruth Ann Berger, Kunkletown, started the Meixsell car. The vehicle, apparently in gear, moved backward. The left front wheel rolled onto the child's body, causing a fatal "pulmonary hemorrhage."

Miss Berger jumped out of the car and Mrs. Meixsell moved the auto forward off her son's body, police said.

District Attorney Elmer D. Christie said yesterday he had gone over details of the accident thoroughly with police, and in view of the police report and the coroner's verdict of accidental death, the district attorney's office would take no action.

The death brought the county toll so far this year to 10—one short of the total for 1951.

Four of the persons injured fatally this year in traffic mishaps have been children six years old or younger.

Aside from the Meixsell fatality, the Friday-to-Sunday accident picture shaped up as:

Seven accidents; a total of ten cars involved; total damages estimated at $2,800; four persons injured, none seriously—three with cuts and bruises, and one with burns from trying unsuccessfully

Nearly 70,000 Vehicles Move Across Two Interstate Bridges During Five-Day Period

The Poconos harvested a bumper crop of traffic over the five-day Fourth of July weekend.

Checking points at two principal traffic centers connecting this area with other regions—the Portland covered bridge at Portland, Pa., and the Delaware bridge at Delaware, N.J.—showed a total of nearly 70,000 vehicles passing into and out of this area during the holiday.

Delaware bridge officials counted a total of 19,822 cars crossing the Delaware River at that point between 12:01 a.m. Thursday and late Friday night.

From midnight Friday to midnight Saturday 8,001 vehicles were tabulated there.

The Saturday total (midnight to Sunday midnight) showed 11,601 cars crossing the bridge in both directions.

Between midnight Sunday and 4 p.m. yesterday an additional 6,334 vehicles crossed the Delaware bridge—making a total of 26,156 cars for the period covering Friday midnight to 4 p.m. Monday.

At the covered bridge near Portland, officials noted the following totals:

Noon Thursday to midnight Thursday night—3,818 cars.

Thursday midnight to Friday midnight—4,898.

Friday midnight to Saturday midnight—4,704.

Saturday midnight to Sunday midnight—6,364.

Sunday midnight to Monday 4 p.m.—2,548.

Total number of vehicles crossing the covered bridge between noon Thursday and 4 p.m. Monday—22,332.

This would place the grand total at 68,330. With lapses in time periods covered by the checking points, however, the total would reach beyond the 60,000 point.

With the heavy influx of travel, surprisingly few accidents were noted on Monroe County highways last weekend (see accompanying story).

Bridge officials reported no accidents and comparatively few traffic snarls at either of the two points.

Dear Editor and Folks of Monroe Co.

I am a patient in the Wilkes-Barre V. A. Hospital and have seen and found this Veterans Hospital the finest and best I've ever seen anywhere in this country. And rest assured I've been in quite a few thus far from coast to coast due to war service in World War I, 1916-1919. Am wondering how many folks in and around Stroudsburg, especially the folks who have had and still have boys or girls in the military services, have seen the war veteran hospital here in Wilkes-Barre. You are really over-to extinguish a fire in her car.

Police at the Stroudsburg, Brodheads and Mount Pocono substations reported much the same story—traffic moderately heavy, but no snarls or bottlenecks.

In other years it was not unusual, police said, for drivers to spend six hours making the trip from the Poconos to New York. Bumper-to-bumper traffic was generally expected for July 4th weekend.

Yesterday, however, police said that despite perfect weather, traffic had been lighter than in years for a major holiday.

looking a treat folks. We people of Pennsylvania have something here to be justly proud of with such a fine modern VA Hospital. Believe me, I know.

The general care, the food, the doctors, nurses and folks in general here employed are just the finest there is and we who are really in need of hospital care really do get the best.

Of course we have entertainments of all descriptions, but personally I for one miss our Pocono hill billy music. Most of the veterans here never heard any of our Pocono hill billy artists. They certainly would be greatly appreciated here.

Too many of our unfortunate boys get down hearted. They feel forgotten and homesick. These in particular are in much need for a bit of fun and music. It really gives them a lift in spirit which is a great help physically and mentally. It aids recovery to good health and general outlook on life.

Some of our local Pocono "square dancers," a good caller with a lively hill billy band, would really make a hit with all the boys, doctors, nurses and the rest around here.

I do not know how many of our local boys are patients here as yet. I've met a comrade from East Stroudsburg thus far and it makes a fellow feel better just talking of things which we have in common and places we both know so well—the folks at home, the farm, fishing, hunting.

To all of the folks who read these lines and who have a loved one here in the hospital, I say do not worry folks, we are in good hands in the finest hospital money can provide.

Best wishes to you all from the boys and myself.

Robert C. Seidorf, Sr. (Sciota, Pa.) Now in Ward 4—West, U.S. Veterans Hospital, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

P.S. Come on one of you hill billy bands and champ square dancers, show the vets of Pennsylvania and other states the Poconos al—so can furnish good music, art—ists and dancers.—R. C. Seidorf, Sr.

Cars Collide On Route 115; $1,000 Damage

Two cars were damaged to the extent of about $1,000 Sunday night in a side-swipe collision about six miles south of Blakeslee on Route 115.

Brodheads State Police who investigated the crash at 9:25 p.m. said a car operated by Rev. Samuel Massburg, 63, of Zarephath, N.J., collided with an automobile driven by Walter J. Blazek, 38, of Plains, Pa.

According to police Rev. Massburg, driving south, attempted to pass another car and Blazek swerved to the left to avoid a head-on collision. The car driven by Rev. Massburg and owned by Rev. Frank Hoar of New Haven, Conn., also cut to the left and crashed into a utility pole and roadside advertising sign. Damage to Blazek's car was estimated at $300 and the Rev. Hoar's automobile was damaged about $700. No charges were preferred by police.

'Paper Ballot' Districts To Decide On Voting Machines

Referendum Scheduled In November

Monroe County districts still using old-fashioned paper ballots will decide in November if they wish to use voting machines in future elections.

Commissioners Anzi F. Altomose, W. Adolph Rake and Granville Shiffer reported yesterday they will put the question on the ballot for all districts not already using voting machines.

The voting will be an individual matter, so far as districts are concerned. Each district which decides in favor of machines will get them.

Barrett Township, the first district to start using voting machines in the county, has had its two machines for years.

For the first time next November, the following districts will be using machines: Stroudsburg, nine machines; East Stroudsburg, seven; Middle Stroud Township, three; and Smithfield Township, two.

All other districts will decide the voting machine question by referendum.

The 21 machines needed to fulfill the last referendum were purchased by commissioners at $1,227 each from the Automatic Voting Machine Corp., represented by John Wolfe, Stroudsburg.

When they awarded the contract, commissioners also obtained an option to purchase 14 more machines at the same price.

The option is valid until April, 1953.

This means that regardless of price rises between now and purchase of any more machines—until April, 1953—the county will still have the advantage of the comparatively low $1,227 figure.

The commissioners yesterday were still riding hard on the county's newly-purchased machines. In an interview with Wolfe, they were assured that the 21 machines purchased had been set aside for delivery in time for the November election.

Continuance of the national steel strike will not hold up delivery, although if the strike continues past November, it might have an effect on the company's future production, Wolfe said.

Truman Signs National Guard Bill

Washington, (AP)—President Truman yesterday signed a bill permitting National Guard units on active federal duty to keep their designations for five years.

Present laws provide that neither the units nor their individual members can be called into federal service for more than 24 months. Defense chiefs, in complying with the law, have been releasing individual members of the units after obtaining replacements from draftees and volunteers. They will continue to let individual guardsmen out before 24 months service.

But, technically, under the old law they also had to release the unit itself. For administrative reasons, they wanted to keep the unit designation. Otherwise, they said, they could maintain adequate forces only by calling other guard divisions to active duty or creating entirely new divisions.

Fugitive Is Found Living In Body Of Abandoned Bus

Allentown, (AP)—The FBI announced yesterday it arrested a 43-year-old man here after a 12-year search. They said the man had lived in an abandoned bus body near here for several years.

Arthur Cornelius Jr., agent in charge, identified the man in custody as Floyd Samuel Green, 43. He said Green had been released conditionally on July 10, 1937, from the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., after conviction on charges of transporting a stolen automobile over state lines.

The FBI said Green violated the conditional release on Jan. 21, 1938, when he left the limits of Washington, D. C., without the permission of the U. S. Parole Board.

Cornelius said Green was convicted in North Carolina of robbery with firearms in 1939 and sentenced to 25 to 35 years in the state penitentiary.

On Jan. 8, 1941, Cornelius said Green escaped from the North Carolina jail and has been at large since.

The FBI agent said Green had been living in an abandoned bus body at Hertztown near here and a neighbor recently spotted Green's picture on the "men wanted" file in the local postoffice and informed the FBI.

School For Citizens

Just how competent a citizen do you think you are?

How much do you know about the duties, responsibilities, powers, or limitations of the varied officials of your municipal government who collect and spend your tax money, and generally administer your local government?

Take the case of the County Auditor. We bring this office up because recently the county has had some experiences with auditors and audits. In fact, right now there is another appeal from the 1951 audit in Monroe County Court.

One of the phases of this appeal is a specification dealing with an additional allowance to county commissioners for expenses incurred in connection with the institution district.

An Act of the 1949 legislature made such an allowance. Pursuant to the act, commissioners throughout the state took the allowance. In Bradford County county auditors applied a surcharge against their commissioners for taking the money, claiming among other things, the law was unconstitutional. Commissioners appealed to Bradford Court. The court upheld the auditors.

Commissioners took the case to the State Superior and State Supreme Courts. Auditors were upheld in both instances. Result—the alertness of Bradford auditors to their duties and responsibilities produced a correction affecting every taxpayer in the state.

Among other things in their appeal, Bradford commissioners raised the issue that the county auditors have no such authority as would enable them to refuse approval of such expenditures on the ground that the law under which they are made is unconstitutional, prior to judicial determination of the question.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Chicago—Senator Robert A. Taft's political forces here in Chicago, despite a week of assaults from the left, are unshaken and confident of victory on the eve of the opening day of the national convention.

The senator's mastery of the pre-convention fighting also has stiffened the spines of unpledged or favorite son delegates, who waited for a first-hand look at the situation in Chicago before taking the plunge. For many of the 1,200 delegates, Sunday was a day of jittery political caucusing as they tried to decide whether the senator's apparent strength is real. It is as everybody in Chicago now knows.

Another big test for the senator is due tomorrow, however, shortly after Guy Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, officially gavel the excited thousands at Convention Hall into silence. About the first order of business is expected to be a demand by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign managers for a change in convention rules. The vote may immediately determine the next Republican presidential nominee.

The issue is simple. Eisenhower does not want any one of the 61 contested delegates, from Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia, to vote on whether they or their opposing counterparts will be seated as official delegates to the 1952 convention. If all of them should be barred from voting on all of the contested fights, Eisenhower's floor managers think they can control the convention and seat the delegates favorable to him.

There is no secret about the General's strategy—and Taft's managers are confident that they can beat it by a straight-out vote on the issue.

The vote will not be a popularity contest. It involves the rules under which the convention will be run—rules that satisfied the delegates in 1944 and 1948. And one of the first indications that the delegates know this occurred in the California state caucus. Although pledged to Gov. Earl Warren, most of California's 70 delegates—55 to 60, anyway—are generally conceded to Gen. Eisenhower when Warren releases them—if he ever does. This fact, however, did not prevent the delegates from demanding the right to express their own wishes on the seating issue, or to pass when called on to vote.

Judge Chester H. Rhodes, Stroudsburg, President Judge of the Superior Court, wrote the opinion which held the law is unconstitutional.

We think you should be interested in Judges Rhodes' discussion of the point that county auditors are limited in their powers in such matters. Here it is:

"The county auditors are a quasi judicial body, and they necessarily have authority to pass upon legal questions initially. They are constitutional officers, but their powers and duties are prescribed by statute.

"They have statutory authority to compel the attendance of witnesses, to administer oaths, and to commit a witness to jail for refusal to answer questions. As public officers they have not only the powers expressly conferred upon them by law, but they also possess, by necessary implication, such powers as are requisite to enable them to discharge the official duties devolved upon them.

"County auditors have the power, and it is their duty to take notice of illegal disbursements of public funds by county officers whose accounts they are empowered and authorized to audit, settle, and adjust, and to surcharge the officer who is guilty of misappropriation."

How much of that did you know? We'd like to suggest that the civic and service clubs here get busy right now on a "School For Citizens". There's plenty of teaching talent. It could be just as interesting as it is valuable to all of us.

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

The French creators of many new ideas, have just hit upon an innovation which might well be imitated by others and particularly by us in the United States.

He is after anybody caught in a Communist riot will be sprayed with a penetrating blue dye which cannot be washed off, thus identifying the culprit forever after for what he is.

This, of course, immediately should suggest to every song writer in America some kind of a ditty such as:

"You are Red because you're blue.
"Darling, I am on to you."
However, let us be serious.

Imagine if that sort of thing were done here in this country! In the first place it would prevent all these Communists who claim to have "reformed" from making such claims. I believe there is no such thing as a reformed Communist.

How could anybody proclaim that he now hates Communism and all it stands for if he is forever colored with blue dye? But the law here should be not only to dye the Reds blue as they are CAUGHT in a riot but as soon as they are FOUND to be Communists.

It would save millions of dollars in court trials. How could a Communist swear that he is NOT a Communist if he is blue all over?

Ballyhoo!

Chicago, July 6—If noise is intelligence, then Chicago is today the Athens of America. The noise on Michigan Avenue, in front of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, which is the headquarters of most candidates, is unbelievable unless it is experienced. Men stand before loudspeakers most of which make no sense. A helicopter flies low, its throttle out, noisily announcing its support of a candidate. "Taft is the man of the house," shouts one loudspeaker. Another blares forth the slogan that "1952 is not 1952."

Bands march up and down the street; boys and girls sing campaign songs. One group shrieks, "We want Taft," another, "We like Ike." Taft's campaign song, "Four-Leaf Clover," has been parodied by Eisenhower singers. None of the noise-makers are delegates and it is doubtful that they will influence a single delegate. In fact, whatever is done about delegates is in small rooms in hotels where the top management of each candidate meets quietly in conclave. Each candidate tries to get a delegate to change his vote. It has come down to individuals, particularly in New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and California delegations. Everybody is in a bargaining mood.

Somehow I am untouched by the excitement, I think, through this noise and irritating barking, that this is not the midway of the Chicago World's Fair; it is a President of the United States these people have come here to nominate in one of the most critical periods of American history. It should be a deliberative assembly, not a contest of physical stamina.

Two weeks from now, the Democrats will similarly be meeting and the scene and excitement will be the same, perhaps even more so. Again, it will be noise and noise and noise, but no deliberation, no contemplative regard for the deep problems that face a people whose sons are actually

The amounts of money spent by the various candidates are enormous. Buttons, badges, banners, entertainment, printed matter, hotel space, radio, television—it is enormous and wholly unjustified. The campaign costs are so out of line that few men could raise the campaign expenses. This high cost of campaigning makes this the greatest show on earth, which it ought not to be.

To me, it is shocking to see so much money spent for winning a nomination. The election costs may, one day, be prohibitive. This is not something to postpone to four years from now. We ought to think about it this year, so that in 1956 a rational way may be found to nominate and elect a president of the United States. This is not a deliberative gathering of a political party; it is ballyhoo run riot.

Somehow I am untouched by the excitement, I think, through this noise and irritating barking, that this is not the midway of the Chicago World's Fair; it is a President of the United States these people have come here to nominate in one of the most critical periods of American history. It should be a deliberative assembly, not a contest of physical stamina.

Two weeks from now, the Democrats will similarly be meeting and the scene and excitement will be the same, perhaps even more so. Again, it will be noise and noise and noise, but no deliberation, no contemplative regard for the deep problems that face a people whose sons are actually fighting in war. I often wonder what the candidates themselves think of it. Bob Taft and Ike Eisenhower are gentlemen and they cannot approve of the banal and indecent things that their partisans shout beneath my window. Certainly, the attitude of Tom Dewey and Henry Cabot Lodge has produced a film of hate within the political party to which they both adhere and which has served them both well.

When this convention is over whether Taft or Eisenhower is nominated or neither of them, the antagonism to Dewey and Lodge will be lasting and may affect the outcome of the election. Many of the established leaders of both sides, with whom I have spoken, deprecate the attitudes of these two men who are not only antagonistic to Taft but each other. It is felt that whether wilfully or by careless enthusiasm, they have damaged the cause of their party rather than the hopes of Senator Taft.

Many feel that Eisenhower's inexperience with political methods is understandable, as his career has been wholly in a different field; but they insist that Dewey and Lodge know what they are doing; that their insatiable jealousy or dislike for Bob Taft is creating an atmosphere which can only be of service to the Democrats. The fact that so many pin-point this disagreeable situation to these two men indicates that sooner or later both will find themselves disavowed by the Eisenhower element and disliked by the Taft element.

On the first day, I must say that much of the enthusiasm is synthetic; the concern for the future grave. The more experienced leaders wonder whether the issue among some is not: control—or destroy.

Yogi Berra, star receiver of the Yankee ball team, is the nearest approach to Ring Lardner's "bushier" currently operating on big league diamonds. Yogi once appeared at Penn Station for a road trip with no baggage whatever. "Don't need any," he explained laconically. "We're only gonna be gone two weeks."

His teammate, Dr. Bob Brown, was reading a treatise on heart disease on the train on day. Yogi suspended perusal of his comic book long enough to remind Bobby, "Lemme know, Doc, how it comes out." Another player complained of a cyst on the back of his neck. "Hey, Vic," whispered Yogi to Pitcher Raschi, "What kind of a bug is a cyst?"

Hollywood

Hollywood—Judy Canova, the Florida hillbilly, has become such big business that it takes five telephones, a secretary, and a husband to keep her organized. The red-haired comedienne finished a singing scene in "The Wae from Walla" the other day, and then we went to lunch. Her husband, Phil Rivers, reported on the morning's clatter from their five telephones at home.

NBC had phoned to ask if she'd pose in a Westlake Park canoe... Mary Pickford invited her to a party for blind veterans... An agent wanted her to make another appearance on the Milton Berle show... Another agent wanted her to make some personal appearances while movie-casting in England... Republic Pictures phoned that the $15.56 check was ready for her daughter Tweeny, 7, for half a day's movie work.

"I have a good business of my own," said Rivers, who imports wine and rope from Cuba and Mexico. "But I've had to turn most of its operation over to my partner."

Miss Canova's second husband is an ex-Havanan who'd never heard of Judy Canova when friends introduced them in the Cuban capital some two years ago. He co-ordinates her activities involving, among others, business manager, agent, pictures, radio, and TV. This is Phil's first contact with show business, and he thinks it's "tops for human interest."

Judy's present movie is the third of six to be made for Studio Pictures, co-owned by her and Republic. After a vacation jaunt with Phil, she'll go to London to cavort through an old castle in a picture called "The Hot Heiress."

AGAIN
Dear Babe:
Well, I am in the doghouse again. All the top brass are giving me dirty looks. I may even get court-martialed. I will tell you how come. It was like this, Babe. There was a little snafu in a raid the other night. I forgot to take part and, when the top sarge came down on me like a ton of brick and asked for a reason, I said, "I supposed you were going to take the hill. You supposed I was going to take it, that's all, so forget it." This seemed okay to me on account of I had read how Secretary Acheson had used exactly that line in explaining to the British why the top brass and top government officials hadn't exactly coordinated on a very important war action along the Yalu in Korea.

Mr. Acheson in explaining to the British why they hadn't been notified of the Yalu River bombings said—and I quote—"The trouble was due to the fact one person was supposed to do something." He didn't embarrass the big shots by mentioning any names in Washington or Korea, and I am not kidding. All I say is that we all make mistakes and, that if the highest men running the war can make one, why can't a G. I.?

I can be wrong, Babe, but it seems to me that a G. I. can make a mistake and do or not do something he was supposed to do with less danger to the country and the war effort than when the top guys make the error. In fact, the way Mr. Acheson brushed aside a very big war move by saying somebody didn't do something is a mistake.

County To Invoke New Assessment System Within Four Years

Commission Plans Blanket Application

A county-wide reassessment program will aim at eliminating existing inequities in taxation, commissioners said yesterday.

A new assessment system was made mandatory under legislation passed last year. Under the new laws, local assessors will no longer set the value on county real estate and buildings.

They will instead become information gatherers. Actual values will be set by the county's chief assessor, George Smith.

A part of the new law requires a type of permanent record system using land value maps, card index systems, and other means designed to permit a more just system of assessments between local districts.

However, Commissioners Amzi F. Altomose, W. Adolph Rake and Granville Shiffer, in a signed statement yesterday, said they believe it will take "at least three years or possibly four" to "put a new assessment system into effect."

The commissioners said it is their intention to put the new system into effect over the "entire county at one time."

The law allows five years, maximum, for establishing the permanent record system portion of the new law.

Said the commissioners in their first official statement on the assessment program since the new laws were passed:

"In view of the recent publicity on assessment inequities, low values, etc., and the statistical information, and suggestions as to scales of values and corrective methods, the County Commissioners felt that it might be of interest to the taxpayer to have a few basic facts set forth regarding the new assessment records and information that must be compiled and kept, as required by the new State law.

"The commissioners feel that the people have all the understanding necessary to reach the proper conclusions if the facts are presented simply and therefore feel that no elaborate explanation of mechanics of the new assessment process is necessary.

"One—Regardless of the merit to the State Tax Equalization Board, the information presented to the people thru newspaper articles, this information was collected by the State Tax Equalization Board, and the statistics compiled FOR THE SOLE USE OF THAT BOARD in solving — a money distribution problem — AT THE STATE LEVEL, and any disclosures, regardless of merit, do not apply to the county level, at this time for any purpose whatsoever, and are of value for informative purposes only.

"Two—The reassessment program, that must be undertaken because of a state law is not tied in any way to the statistics presented, but is to be an independent program developed within the County, under the direct control of the Commissioners, and will reflect only County values as they actually are.

"Three—The reassessment program's basic aim — is three fold and is aimed at higher taxes, but is designed to eliminate inequities in taxation. The objectives of the program are:

(a) "A system of correct and detailed and accurate information on all real property (which will serve many purposes other than for taxation).

(b) "A complete, and currently kept records of all changes at all times.

(c) "The establishment of equality of assessments and taxes within an area having substantially the same building and land values, thus eliminating inequities that should all bear nearly equal taxes.

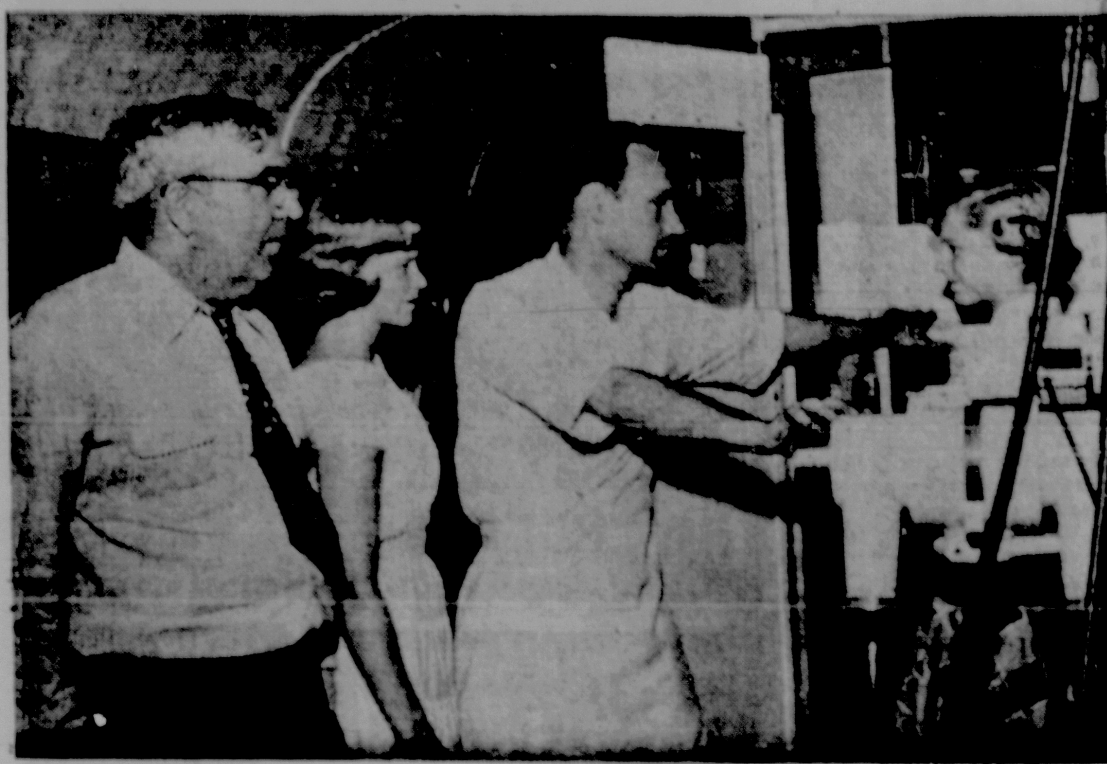

"Four—There is no intention of elevating assessment values of one area to meet or conform to values in another area. Each area will retain the assessed values—that are inherent in the property values—of that area, that justifiably belong to that individual area.

"Five—There is no intent to raise taxes, or to take in tax monies any more than is necessary to run the county affairs as they should be run, and to provide for sound, substantial, growth based on clear needs of the County, and reasonably anticipated growth, advancement and permanent convenience development.

"Six—It is entirely possible that the process of equalizing taxes within the County areas may lighten the taxes of many now paying more than their neighbor. Also it is entirely possible that there will not be any OVER ALL increase in taxes, to those now paying highest taxes.

"Seven—Under the present accepted system of taxation all should bear their just and fair share, and aside from the purpose of compiling, and keeping correct and permanent records—the only purpose of the revised program is to effect, as great a degree of fairness between individuals as possible, based on accurate records.

"Eight—There is no objective to increase taxes but the new method of evaluating may increase the

76 New York Children Arrive Here Tomorrow For Pocono Vacations With Fresh Air Hosts

Tomorrow is the big day for 76 underprivileged youngsters from New York City. They will be introduced to their Pocono Mountains friendly town hosts at Stroudsburg High athletic field at 12:30 p.m.

Mrs. John Wilson, chairman of the 1932 Fresh Air Committee, said the regional hosts are urged to be present promptly at 12:30.

The children are due to arrive at East Stroudsburg D. L. & W. railroad station at 12:21 p.m., accompanied by New York Herald Tribune Fresh Air chaperones.

Fresh Air Fund officials will remain here until every youngster is properly assigned to the hosts who will provide them with about two weeks vacation in the Poconos as house guests.

With the grandstand being dismantled, school officials yesterday agreed they will open suitable space in the high school building for assignment of the children, in case of rain.

Les Drake, Delaware Valley Transportation Co. operator, will provide buses for free transportation from station to the high school.

Mrs. Wilson said a committee consisting of Mrs. Walter Caulfield and Mrs. H. T. Staboski, will meet the children. They will be assisted by two East Stroudsburg girls.

Mrs. John Stanford and Mrs. Roy Houser will head the group of women who will have charge of the guidance of the Fresh Airs at the school.

Refreshments are to be served by Mrs. Merle C. Ostrom, Mrs. William Gorton, Mrs. Glenn Lowry and Mrs. Edward C. Hess.

Boy and Girl Scout organizations will assist the committee.

Joe Webster, WVPO station manager and E. M. Rahn will deal with identification and distribution problems.

Club To Meet At Animal Farm

The meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Stroudsburg this week will be held at the Wild Animal Farm, off the Foxton Hill road at the usual time, 12:15 p.m., Wednesday. Luncheon will be catered under the trees by the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

In the event weather conditions are inclement, the meeting will be held at the hotel as usual.

taxes of those not now paying—equal with a neighbor, who may have been paying more than his share for years.

"Nine—The present board of commissioners are all heavy real property taxpayers, and have been for years. They are therefore well aware of the burdens and problems of the real property taxpayer, and therefore will strive to see that sound values, and fair tax rates be reached—and maintained, and that the most economical method consistent with sound results be used to compile, install, and operate the new method.

"It is the commissioners belief that it will take at least three years or possibly four to assemble and correlate all the assessment data and put a new assessment system into effect, and it is the intention of the commissioners to prepare the system and put it into effect over the entire county at one time."

'Gramercy Ghost' Cast Puts Up Game Fight But Bad Play Wins Decision, Says Reviewer

By Leonard Randolph Mountainhome—Although Miss June Lockhart and Mr. John Dall are two charming and talented actors, they are not practitioners of the art of working miracles.

This became unpleasantly evident last night on the stage of the Pocono Playhouse when the two engaged in mortal combat with a humorless little trifle called "Gramercy Ghost"—a game of ghostly proceedings which borders dangerously close to such suspenseful parlor games as "Going to Jerusalem" or musical chairs.

This so-called "comedy" has been named together by a gentleman named John Cecil Holm, who, from past reports, is a playwright of somewhat greater gifts than the present effort would seem to indicate. Mr. Holm has done his play with an audience of three-year-olds in mind.

The basic plot of the play concerns a young lady currently residing in the Gramercy area of New York who is wooed by the spirit of a Revolutionary War resident who has been doomed, since death, to the rather listless existence of "haunting" the house in which the play takes place. There is also a newspaper reporter (Mr. Dall) around to make comments in the accepted "Front Page" style and provide the earthly love interest.

The plot, it is easy to surmise, has the makings of a pleasant fantasy. Mr. Holm, however, is not a gentleman to leave well enough alone. Neither is he the sort of writer who should be dealing in fantasy. Under his manipulation on what might have passed for make-believe has been turned into broad-beamed farce.

What little humor there is in "Gramercy Ghost" (and so far as I am concerned it is negligible) is derived from the notion that the idea of a ghost (dead 200 years) wooing a young lady is terribly funny. Mr. Holm was apparently convinced of this since he has given his "comedy" little else in the way of genuine humor.

The idea behind the play may have been basically sound but somewhere along the way the joke split apart at the seams. Since the play is founded upon the joke, it must fail too.

As has been previously mentioned both Miss Lockhart and Mr. Dall are talented actors. Each of them has appeared successfully on Broadway and in motion pictures. There are times, however, when genuine talent does not stand a chance.

Miss Jean Templeton, an accomplished actress by anyone's standards, made a brief but stimulating appearance. Miss Templeton's voice, I believe, also was heard (via telephone) in a second equally humorous moment.

The current play also marks the first appearance this year by several of the young people who are apprentice backstage.

Among these were Larry Swan-

118 Persons Report For Chest X-Rays

Yesterday's opening of the annual Monroe County Tuberculosis Society food handlers' x-ray project attracted 118 persons to the mobile x-ray unit.

Bulk of the food handlers were x-rayed at Stroudsburg Municipal building 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. It is compulsory for all food handlers to have a chest x-ray as part of their physical examination in the borough.

In the long period from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at Chestnut Hill Inn, McIlhenny, only 35 food handlers took advantage of the service.

Today the mobile unit and technicians from National X-Ray Service, Orange, N. J., will go to Pocono Manor. It will operate there from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Mount Pocono food handlers and residents will be x-rayed from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the fire house. Tomorrow night from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. the unit will be at East Stroudsburg fire house.

Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive secretary of the TB Society, has set up a system for processing those who report for x-rays. A minimum of time is consumed in each case.

Member Clubs Give To Fund

A round-up of reports on contributions to the Salvation Army camp fund conducted last night by Monroe County Federation of Fraternal & Social Organizations showed that every club has made its gift to this fund.

Adopted as a federation project a number of years ago, this fund-raising effort has been continually successful. This year, with generous public contributions and gifts from other groups, the fund has gone over the original quota.

Salvation Army authorities have met this situation by expanding their free camping trips to more children. Various groups are already in camp learning crafts, swimming, guided recreation, basic religious training.

Final reports received last night showed that both Italian-American and Monroe Lodge of Elks have contributed to the fund, thus closing out the full roster of clubs.

Last night's meeting was held in East Stroudsburg Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, with George W. Price, president, conducting the business meeting which followed a dinner.

Mr. Price announced that the annual Moose picnic will be held at Palmer's Grove, west of Stroudsburg, on July 27.

Mount Pocono Man Displays Salamander, Declares It Came Out Of Water Faucet

Mount Pocono—A salamander appeared before borough council here last night.

The two-inch creature, complete with four legs and a tail, was in a medicine bottle, and quite dead.

The bottle was in the hand of Tom Lynott, retired coal operator.

He told council he was drawing water in the kitchen at his home Sunday morning. Out popped the salamander, Lynott claimed.

He (Lynott) submerged a bottle under the water in the sink and the creature conveniently swam into it.

While this was intriguing, Lynott indicated to council, he was not in favor of such happenings.

What he wanted, Lynott made clear, was just plain old water. Sometimes, Lynott claimed, he could not even obtain water with or without such embellishments.

On one such occasion, he said, a nurse attending him at his home during an illness last summer was unable to draw enough water for Lynott to swallow a pill he was ordered to take.

Several other borough residents described alleged "hardships" they had undergone.

Following the reports from residents, council unanimously moved that a petition — to be signed by residents, if necessary — shall be prepared for filing with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission by the borough solicitor, Elmer D. Christine.

The petition will carry the complaints and grievances of borough residents to the PUC and request action by the commission to bring correction or improvement.

The water system which supplies the borough is under private ownership, and is operated under a PUC franchise.

Wind Gap RD Man Drowns

Wind Gap—Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10:30 a.m. for Ira A. Van Baskirk, 39-year-old resident of Wind Gap Rd. who drowned Sunday in a farm pond near Pen Argyl.

Northampton county coroner Dr. Martin J. Bechtel said last night at Palmer's Grove, west of Stroudsburg, on July 27.

There had been some speculation that the man may have suffered a heart attack.

The accident occurred at the George Heimer farm at about 8:45 p.m. Sunday. Artificial respiration and a mechanical respirator brought to the scene by members of the Pen Argyl fire company failed to revive the man.

Rescuers retrieved the body from a six-foot-deep section of the pond by 100 foot pond.

Surviving are his wife, Marion; two daughters, Carol Lee and Catherine and a stepson, Ronald Parsons, all at home; and a sister, Mrs. Albert Slutter, Wind Gap Rd.

Hanoi, Indochina, 7/8—The Republican convention and a tropical heat wave pushed war news off front pages of newspapers here yesterday.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

There's one thing about convention oratory; the house seems mighty quiet and peaceful when you turn it off. Ordinarily, we seem to live in quite a hubbub. Children blowing alleged musical instruments, dogs barking, birds singing, but in comparison with the bull-throated roars, the oratorical rise and fall of voices, the cheers and confusion which the radio or television is emitting these days, such noise is trifling.

Of course if you can sit down and listen, the whole thing begins to make sense of a sort. But heard from the kitchen where the dinner's cooking or out by the clothesline taking down the dry clothes, it's pretty much of a racket.

However, it has taken the conversational ball right away from the weather. Everywhere you go people are talking politics. Except the farmers whose crops are drying in the field, or the man whose lawn is turning brown. They're still sticking with the need for rain.

From ten to two tonight might be a good time for rain. But not at 1 or 6 p. m. with four outdoor picnics on the schedule. With this full schedule it's hard to find a time when rain would be convenient except at midnight. And I knew we'd come to it sooner or later—morning meetings, I mean. The Wildflower Study group has started a 10 a. m. summer schedule.

Listen To Bobby Westbrook daily, Monday through Friday, on "The Party Line" WVPO, 10:05 a. m.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

Promptly at 7 a. m. yesterday, our chartered bus rolled by Main street enroute to Quebec, the 15 excursionists being waved away by Edna Brockman, head of our Wyckoff Travel Bureau. Among the travelers was Miss Ida B. Shaffer of Mountainhome, who seldom if ever misses a Wyckoff-planned trip. Those who accompanied her to Guatemala, tell me she's a thoroughly delightful traveling companion. Wonder if she'd appear on one of our Wyckoff Shopper broadcasts and tell some of her experiences? That would be fun.

Florence Predmore, head of stationery, proudly displays a new shipment of Royal portables, including the deluxe—which is truly "the strong, silent type"—and the Arrow, which is just as strong but not so silent. Their respective prices including tax, are $103.58 and $92.98. And Florence, with an eye to business suggests that they'd be perfect Christmas gifts if purchased now on the basis of $19 down and $2 a month.

Life can be beautiful—and so can YOU. Sue Edinger, of cosmetics, tells me that a beauty consultant from Helena Rubinstein will visit the store beginning July 21. Why not begin now to make out a list of your beauty questions? Hand-some is a handsome does, I'm told.

Madame Rubinstein, displays a dazzling new array of jewels for fall from Adler-Miller, Austrian stones, beautifully cut and prong-set in the manner of real gems, these are as glittery as a debutante's ball. Amethyst and chrysoprase will continue in the season ahead as a favored color combination, and rhinestones will still sparkle on the fashion front—in dog collars, wide bracelets, bangles, and pendants. This so-elegant jewelry is spoofily splendid in more ways than one. It looks heavy enough to anchor the Queen Elizabeth—but it's as light as my pocketbook the day before payday.

And that's right... Bud Altman of our Men's department, points proudly to a new line of denim slacks which he believes his customers will welcome enthusiastically. Fashioned for comfort with an elastic waist band in the back, large hip and side pockets, these can be laundered as readily as can mother's shorts and kiddie playsuits. Denim is a family fabric tuned to family fun this glorious season.

And on my own, just like to mention the Jantzen Tee shirts for Dad at $2.95... Wyckoff's pre-school customers have their troubles too, deciding how to spend their pennies. One little fellow had a dreadful time yesterday selecting a long back, Rottie Kajoite won over Bugs Bunny and Pogo Possum.

Stopped to watch Mabel Fursdon demonstrating those wonderful all-purpose plastic rayon towels, sold in packages of six at $1. Mrs. Fursdon rubs them in chocolate, sprinkles them with iodine, uses them to wipe the dirt from the soles of her shoes—then whisks them spotlessly clean in clear water in an instant's time. Talk about pulling rabbits out of hats! THAT'S nothing!... Magic too, is De-Moist, now shown in our notions' department. Hang a sackful wherever dampness threatens to encourage rust, mildew and musty odors, and presto, your worries are over.

But why should I mention all this? Why not just invite you in to see for yourself!

Violent Death Total Hits 643 In Three Days

By The Associated Press

At least 643 persons met accidental death over the three-day Independence Day week end, a final tabulation showed last night.

This compared with 510 such deaths during the Memorial Day weekend.

The 366 traffic deaths reported set a record for a three-day Fourth of July holiday weekend, but a widespread heat wave shared blame with the motorcar for the high over-all toll.

There were 202 drownings, compared with 83 during the Memorial Day weekend.

Only two persons died from fireworks, but 73 met violent death from miscellaneous causes.

National Safety Council figures for 1952 show 90 persons have died every 24 hours in motor vehicle accidents.

The council had forecast 430 traffic deaths, and Ned Dearborn, council president, commented that drivers and law enforcement officers deserve "a pat on the back" for saving lives.

Text Of Talk By Acheson Not Revealed

London, CP—Prime Minister Churchill refused yesterday to publish as a white paper the full text of U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson's speech to a British parliamentary group last June 26.

Acheson's speech was off-the-record, but a portion of it was released later by the U. S. State Department.

During a debate last week on lack of consultation on the Yalu River bombings, Churchill quoted Acheson as saying to the parliamentary group: "You are a partner of ours in this operation and we wanted to consult you; we should have and we recognize the error."

"I should be sorry to take any action which might prejudice the frank and confidential character of such addresses in the future," said Churchill.

DePaul Elected President Of Mount Pocono Rotarians

Mount Pocono—Louis J. DePaul was installed as president of Rotary here at a meeting in the Methodist Church.

DePaul replaces Harry Taylor, who has been president since 1949.

Other officers installed were Willard Webster, secretary; Paul

Assure, treasurer; Harold Stiff and

Andrew McGinley, board members.

Speaker at the session was Evan T. Thomas, of West Pittston, one of the hundreds of young students sent abroad on Rotary Foundation fellowships to promote international goodwill and better understanding between nations.

Thomas has just returned from studies at Bristol University, England, where he had time to obtain a degree in bacteriology and take a long look at England's social and economic structure.

He sees that country as one of austerity, higher taxes and lower wages than in the U.S.

Incentives of the laboring class are "not what they should be," Thomas told Rotarians. "They wanted something for nothing."

As an example, he cited the home-owner who hired a paper-hanger to paper a 10-foot-square wall. The job took three days.

"Prices are extremely high," said the observer. "A four-pound chicken costs about $4.25. A little Austin car costs between $3,200 and $4,200. It would be cheaper for an Englishman to buy an Austin in the United States and ship it back to England."

Thomas did not say how an Englishman might find a way to take the price of an Austin out of England with him.

He added that on items like a car, there is a 100 per cent purchase tax.

Thomas naturally touched on socialized medicine. His summation: "red tape, political favoritism, high price."

Medical needs for Englishmen actually cost the individual more in the long run than the same needs would cost in America. Thomas asserted. The reason—Englishmen must contribute weekly to the medical care program, even if they don't need medical treatment themselves at the time (like the system of hospitalization insurance in force throughout much of America).

Thomas also mentioned the case of a chemical firm in England which arranged for a German company to ship over a load of scarce beef. The beef was shipped. The House of Commons got wind of the deal held up the shipment and entered a debate about whether the arrangement should have been made through some government agency.

In the meantime the meat spoiled.

Thomas attended West Pittston schools, served in the Navy from 1945 to 1947 as a pharmacist's mate, was graduated from Mansfield State Teachers College in 1950, obtained his master's degree from Syracuse University, then went to Bristol University.

Next Fall he will re-enter Syracuse and work toward his Ph. D.

Why?

What'll it mean to you?

Down on the convention floor, a key delegation has gone into a huddle. A whispered message . . . a quick vote . . . here comes the switch that will decide the nomination!

But even though you see it happening . . . hear the excited voices describing the hullabaloo . . . you won't be satisfied.

What really happened? . . . not only in plain sight, but in that Chicago hotel room . . . or on the long distance phone?

Who released what delegates? Who promised what? Who first heard the alluring strains of the bandwagon? What are the "big men" saying, underneath that roar of cheers? What does it mean for next fall . . . for the country . . . for you?

In short, you want your newspaper.

For no other news medium can give you enough reports and sidelights and opinions . . . fast enough . . . when you choose, where you choose, in the order that interests you most.

That's why everybody reads the newspaper . . . on days of supreme excitement . . . and every day.

If you're selling something that's advertised, make sure it's advertised to all the people in town.

All your customers and prospects read the newspaper — at the time they choose, for as long as they choose — for the advertising as well as for news or for fun.

When you're backed by newspaper advertising, your story has a chance to reach everybody . . . not just comedy fans, or mystery fans, or sports fans . . . but everybody.

That's why advertisers today invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising. Newspapers are first with the most news . . . the most people . . . the most advertisers!

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Life of Riley

Alden "Red" Fetherman former outstanding athlete at Stroudsburg High, is showing more interest each day in Muhlenberg College, where, according to reports, Benney Borgman, baseball coach and scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, is showing even more interest in Fetherman. The former letter athlete at Stroudsburg High will undoubtedly play football, basketball and baseball at Muhlenberg, if he is admitted. The board of admissions is reportedly meeting today.

Fetherman has had college offers from other schools in the east and had just about decided on Moravian, when he became thoroughly interested in Muhlenberg. It will be known within the next few days exactly what school the outstanding athlete attends. Regardless of the school at which Fetherman studies, he will help greatly in the college's football, basketball and baseball departments, as he is a natural athlete if there ever was one in this area.

Jimmy Werkheiser, who was playing last year for Manager Frank Radler's Union City, Tenn. club, in recent months, has returned to his Tannersville home, at the request of Uncle Sam. Jim, who formerly played with Pocono A.C., is scheduled to enter the service on Wednesday, July 16, so he was learned last night. Werkheiser, a graduate of Pocono High and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was in the midst of a hitting spree when Uncle Sam issued his call. Jim returned home with a group of people from Reiders, who were in Union City over the weekend, to see Lloyd "Sonny" Woodling pitch.

Woodling is another Pocono High graduate and is also an ESSTC student. "Sonny" played his summer baseball with Reiders, of the Pocono Mountains League. If my memory serves me correctly, Jim is still on the active roster of Pocono A.C. and the hard hitting infielder may take over shortstop for Manager John Schoonover and company for a few games before moving into Uncle Sam's employment. Pocono A.C. is scheduled to battle East Rangoon, at East Rangoon in an important Blue Mountain League week.

Ray Steele, former East Stroudsburg High baseball and basketball star and currently a member of the Bushkill pitching staff, will be among the capacity crowd at Shibe Park today, taking in the major league All-Star game. The story is making its call to two of Monroe County's better known baseball players this week, as both enjoy vacations. Danny Eppley, Bushkill pitcher, and Clair Bloss, who divided his time between the infield and outfield for Tannersville, and families are headed for the shore. Both are veteran members of the Pocono Mountains League.

Ray Welsh, a resident of Stroudsburg and scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be one of the many major league ivory hunters on hand for the city-wide American Legion tryouts in Philadelphia next month. The scouts will direct the tryout sessions, which in turn may provide another major league prospect for the boys who beat the bushes to keep the American and National League clubs stocked with players. Welsh will be remembered throughout the east as basketball coach at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College for four years prior to last season.

It was no accident that Janet Dicks, a sophomore at ESSTC, made the United States Olympic team. Janet spent many hours practicing the discus, shot put and javelin on the ESSTC field during the spring months and the long hours of work finally materialized into a life-long dream of sometime taking part in the great Olympics. The ESSTC honor student will compete against some of the toughest opposition in the world, when she goes into action at Helsinki, against virtually every other country in the world.

Jack Gregory, former football star at ESSTC, is currently working at the Village Inn, in Marshalls Creek, after returning from his honeymoon. Jack was married to a West Chester girl shortly after graduation in May. Gregory will coach football at New Castle, Del. High in the fall. Jerry Lynn, who plays with Daleville, of the Pocono Mountain Association, formerly played with the old Poconos, at the time of Mickey Haslin, so this column was informed last night. Daleville is currently leading the league, but is receiving plenty of pushing from Newfoundland and Tobyhanna.

Chippendale Kennels, a kennel operated by John Schoonover and Boyd Weiss and dealing only in fox hounds, contains a hound formerly owned by Walter Johnson, the great pitcher with the Washington Senators, who died a few years ago. Members of the Stroudsburg Little League going to Philadelphia on Saturday, to see the A's and Detroit play, are reminded that two buses will leave the Monroe County YMCA at 7 a.m. and each player must be in uniform.

Peoples Coal Triumphs Over National Bank

Peoples Coal Co. won over the National Bank 4-1, yesterday in a Stroudsburg Little League contest, played on the circuit's official Little League field.

Paul Frailey turned in a fine one-hit performance on the mound for Peoples contingent, but lost a shutout in the third inning, when the National Bank club came up with a single marker.

The Peoples Coal contingent broke the scoring famine with a single run in the second, then came back with two markers in the third and one more in the fourth, which proved more than enough to bring home all the marbles.

Peoples Coal was limited to four hits, but two of them were of the extra base variety, which resulted in four tallies.

Frailey was in hot water on several occasions during the contest due to his inability to find the plate while giving up 11 free tickets to first base. However, Frailey had what he needed in the clutch, while striking out 10 batters.

Security Trust and Penn-Stroud Hotel clash on the same field today, at 6:30 p.m.

Legion Tilt On Sunday

An American Legion tryout scheduled for Gordon Giffels field this coming Sunday, has been moved to Minersville on the same date, it was learned recently.

The Legion was unable to work out an agreement for the use of the lights at Giffels field, to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Game Scheduled

However, two all-star teams will be chosen from the East Stroudsburg, Rangoon and Pen Argyl entries in the Northampton County American Legion League on Sunday, at the East Stroudsburg playground.

Coaches from the A's and Phillies will be on hand to coach the two all-star squads and select the best players to appear in a Legion game in the near future.

Each member of all three teams mentioned are to put in an appearance, it was announced last night by Tom Carmella, manager of the East Stroudsburg club.

Members of the four teams in the Little Bigger League were officially announced last night, following a meeting of players, league officials, team managers and other interested parties at Gordon Giffels field.

Each club is to have 15 uniformed players and may also have a manager and assistant manager in uniform during the course of a game.

The Line Material club will consist of Francis Hasara, George DeHaven, Harry Caulfield, Ronald "Super" Phillips, Byron "Chick" Miller, Pete Westbrook, Dick Hintze, H. Smith, Tom Kloes, Don Smith, Marjelle "Bumpy" Keiper, John Vogt, Jim

National Favored In All-Star Contest

By Joe Reinkler

Philadelphia (AP) — A confident National League squad, its lineup bursting with power, its pitching poised and well rested, remained a solid 7-5 favorite yesterday to capture its third straight from the injury-riddled and undermanned American League in the 19th All-Star game.

A crowd of 32,750 was expected to fill Shibe Park today for the annual mid-summer clash which will start at 1:30 p.m. EDT. The game will be heard on radio and seen on television by upwards of 20 million more fans from coast to coast.

A cloudy, warm and humid day was predicted with a possibility of showers in late afternoon. The temperature was expected to hover around 80 degrees. In event of rain, the game will be played the following day at 11 a.m. EDT.

Leo Durocher, manager of the New York Giants, arrived to take charge of the Nationals and immediately named Curt Simmons, 7-2, the sensational Philadelphia Phillies' southpaw, to pitch the first three innings.

Nomination

Manager Casey Stengel of the Americans, nominated Vic Raschi, 8-2, of his own New York Yankees to oppose Simmons.

Durocher planned to use Jerry Staley 11-6 of the St. Louis Cardinals in the middle three innings and finish up with either Bob Rush, 9-6, of the Chicago Cubs or his own Jim Hearn, 9-2. All are right handers.

Stengel could name only one other pitcher besides Raschi. He said Bob Lemon, 7-7, of the Cleveland Indians would hurt the middle three innings. He could go no further for the very obvious reason that two of his remaining pitchers are physically handicapped while the other two will not have had sufficient rest at game time.

Stengel originally planned to start Bobbie Shantz, the brilliant left-hander of the Philadelphia Athletics, but Shantz complained of a pain in his chest while pitching against the Yankees Sunday and had to be excused after four innings. He was charged with his third defeat against 14 victories.

Allie Reynolds, the Yankees' super righthander with the lowest earned run average in the majors, is handicapped by a sprained right wrist that caused him to pass up his pitching turn July 4.

Stengel said he planned to talk with Shantz and Reynolds before he decided upon his third pitcher. It seemed unlikely that either would be in shape to pitch.

Paige Possibility

The wily Yankee manager probably will call on "Satchel" Paige, 6-4, despite the fact that the 45-plus Negro right hander of the St. Louis Browns pitched Sunday in relief.

"The way that Old Gaffer works, he could pitch every day," said Stengel. "I'll have to talk to him first, though, before I make up my mind."

The only other pitcher on the squad is Mike Garcia, 11-6, sturdy righthander of the Indians. Garcia, however, worked 13 innings Sunday before losing to the Chicago White Sox.

In sharp contrast the Nationals will go into the game with four well-rested hurlers. Neither Simmons, Staley, Rush or Hearn has seen action since last Thursday.

The other All-Star pitchers, Sal Maglie, of the Giants, Warren Spahn, of the Braves and Robin Roberts, of the Phillies, pitched Sunday.

The starting lineups were the same as those selected by the fans.

Gavilan Stops Turner On TKO In Eleventh

By Jack Hand

Philadelphia (AP) — Cuban Kid Gavilan stood off the brawny attacks of 21-year-old Gil Turner last night to stage a blazing rally that left his youthful challenger helpless on the ropes, a technical knockout victim in 2:47 of the 11th round and saved his world welterweight boxing title.

Slowing down the machine gun attack of the previously unbeaten young Philadelphia boy who had won 31 straight, the sleek Cuban turned on the full fury of his two-fisted attack in a steaming finish that thrilled the huge crowd at Municipal Stadium.

Swarming with the fury of a champion endangered, Gavilan hammered Turner around the ring in the savage 11th round assault. A left hook started it and at least 50 punches kept him going.

Refusing to go down, young Turner weaved and rocked with his back against the ropes while Gavilan poured it on him. Gil almost sat down on the bottom strands as the fire of youth played out.

Retreating across the ring while

Gavilan pressed for the knockout, Turner's legs wobbled and caved in while Gavilan drove home his rocking rights.

Weaving in helpless fashion, Turner again backed to the ropes while the Cuban champ continued to pour home punishment.

With his white mouthpiece hanging from his loose lips, Turner was saved from possible serious injury when Referee Fete Tomasco intervened at 2:47 of the 11th.

For five rounds, the kid from Philadelphia's "Strawberry Mansion" district fought with a fury that brought the big crowd roaring to its feet. Onward, onward, ever onward this tussled haired young Negro pressed his attack.

Gavilan gave ground willingly but fought back in spurts, matching punch for punch in stirring rallies that closed the first, third, fifth, sixth and 10th rounds.

It was a close battle up to the sudden ending. But you could see it coming is young Gil, who never went 15 rounds, suddenly found his own pace and Gavilan's sharp counter punches wearing him down.

Both judges, Charlie Daggert and Lou Tress, had the bout even 4-5 going into the 11th. Referee Tomasco had Gavilan on top 6-4. The AP card showed Gavilan ahead 5-4-1.

The tide turned in the fifth round when Gavilan drove home a zinging body right to Turner's jaw. Two left hooks wobbled Gil into a clinch. It seemed as though the end was in sight as another hook cracked off the chin of the challenger.

Referee Tomasco, who warned Turner for low blows in the third and fifth, finally took the fifth round away from the young challenger.

As the sixth started, Turner's rat-a-tat attack had slowed down. Taught respect for Gavilan's punches and his ability to shake off his best shots, Gil slowed his pace down for that moment. With the exception of the eighth and ninth, Gavilan was able to fight his own kind of fight. He made Turner play into his hands as Gil lurched in with his right down—a prime target for the champ's hook.

Blues Score In Ninth To Gain Verdict Over Reds, 3-2

A single through the middle in the ninth inning by Marcus "Mark" Decker enabled the Blues to take the measure of the Reds, 3-2, in the first contest of a three-game Monroe County Softball League All-Star series, played at the East Stroudsburg Junior High School field.

The Blues opened the contest with a single run in the first inning, but the Reds came back to even the count in the third.

Both clubs picked up single markers in the fifth round and the Blues went on to win in the ninth inning, in a game that was originally slated for seven frames.

Although defeated, the Reds held an 8-6 edge in the hitting department. Jim "Bumpy" Smith led the losing attack with two hits in two trips to the plate, and batted home both runs.

The same two clubs clash in the second game of the series today, at Stroudsburg Play-ground. The game is scheduled to get under way at 6:15 p.m.

Frank Laibe and George Spring also won for Stroudsburg, by a 2-1 margin over Williams and Arner, Bethlehem. However, the Bethlehem team swept the last three matches to walk off with the victory by a comfortable margin.

Bethlehem's Urban and Dunn proved too strong for Stroudsburg's Harold Blair and George Stone in the fourth match, as the Bethlehem twosome won by a 3-0 score. Rhinehart and Gillner, Bethlehem, won over Walt Weber and Dick St. Bonnet, Stroudsburg, by a 3-0 score. The final match went to Staffieri and Van Kenren, Bethlehem, over Bill Henry and an unnamed partner, Stroudsburg, by a 3-0 count.

A return match between the two Aeries will be held at Glen Brook on Sunday, July 20, and again at the same course on Sunday, August 17. The final match between the two teams will be at Bethlehem on Sunday, September 14.

Time Set For Leaving

All members of the Stroudsburg Little League, wishing to see the A's-Detroit game in Philadelphia, will leave the YMCA at 7 a.m. on Saturday.

Phillies Sign Pitcher

Fight Manager Dies

Pittsburgh (AP) — William A. "Gus" Greenlee, 56, one-time manager of former light heavyweight champion John Henry Lewis, died yesterday. He had been ill several months.

Daleville Rolls Over Newfoundland

Newfoundland — Daleville gave a demonstration of power in Sunday's Pocono Mountain Association action here, as the visiting contingent ran over the Newfoundland Bears, 13-0, at the fair grounds.

The win was the fifth of the season for Bob Haines, and the second straight shutout, as Daleville vaulted into a first place spot ahead of both Newfoundland at Tobyhanna.

Helps Cause

Haines aided his own cause by batting in four runs, mainly on the strength of a booming double with the bases loaded.

The Daleville club did all its damage on an even dozen hits, while Newfoundland could account for only four safeties, which included three singles and a double, the latter going to the credit of Dick Dunning.

Daleville scored two times in the first inning and was in complete command of the game the remainder of the distance.

Harry Obitz

Shawnee-on-Delaware — A field of 156 players from 12 states will compete in a wide open battle for the title in the 29th annual Shawnee Invitation Golf Tournament starting tomorrow over the Shawnee Inn and Country Club course here.

Frank Allan, Pittsford, Pa., a former champion and runner-up last year to Tom Robbins, Rye, N. Y., will head the field studded with top-flight amateurs.

Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and New England are about equally represented in the entries while others come from Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and the New England States.

Howard Everett, Atlantic City, N. J. former Philadelphia District and Pennsylvania State amateur and open champion; Ellis Taylor, three times Delaware State champion; Dominic Strafaci, Brooklyn; John McCarthy and Lionel MacDuff, Peabody, Mass.; Bob Davies, of the Rochester Royals National professional league basketball team; Dr. F. A. Wichmann, Bath, Maine; Russell Teunon, Trenton, N. J.; Robert Zipp, Great Neck, L. I.; Gerald Peet, Easton; Stu Jenkinson, Allentown; and Dr. Roy Pasternak, New York City, are included in the field, which is a record one according to head professional Harry Obitz who also is director of the tournament.

MacDuff, Jenkinson, Taylor, Pasternak, Peet and Frank and Don Allen all qualified for the championship flight last year.

Tom Robbins, last year's winner who went on to win the national seniors following his Shawnee invitation victory, will be trying for the Western Seniors title this year and will not defend his Shawnee crown, leaving the field wide open.

An 18-hole medal play round today will qualify 16 of the starters for the championship flight. Match play starts Friday and continues until the champion is crowned Sunday.

Leonard Wins Cartoonist Golf Tourney

Shawnee-on-Delaware — Lank Leonard, creator of the comic strip Mickey Finn, won the National Cartoonist Golf Tournament here at the Shawnee Inn and Country Club course. There was a total of 72 entries in yesterday's field.

Leonard finished with a card of 92, which with a handicap of 17 enabled Leonard to finish with a low net of 75.

Second

C. D. Russell, creator of Pete the Tramp, finished second behind Leonard with a 76 net. Bob Lubbers, creator of Tarzan, and Richard Van Buren, founder of Abbie and Slats, deadlocked for third with a 77.

John Murphy, artist for the Big Ben Bolt comic strip, won low gross honors with a 40-37—77, five over Shawnee's 72 par.

American League Players Ask Raise In Minimum Salaries

Philadelphia (AP) — American League players yesterday asked for a raise in the minimum baseball salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.

Freddy Hutchinson, retiring spokesman for the junior circuit players, included the salary boost among 11 demands made to the owners. Hutchinson, only last weekend appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers, said the salary increase was necessary because of higher living conditions, high taxes and high prices. The $5,000 minimum was instituted in 1947.

The player representatives of all eight American League clubs met yesterday in their annual mid-summer session just prior to the All-Star game. The American and National Leagues will meet in the 19th annual dream game at Shibe Park today.

Another demand the players want considered by the owners at the annual joint major league meeting next winter would limit the amount of winter baseball played by big league natives of Latin-American countries.

Present Regulations

Under present regulations, Latin American natives can play winter ball all year long. American players who have played in 45 big league games in the previous season cannot play winter ball after the end of the 30-day barnstorming period allowed after the end of the season.

State-side players object to the all-winter play for the Latin Americans because they claim the south of the border boys show up at spring training in mid-season form and put American players out of jobs.

The American League representatives also are asking for uniform pitching mounds in all parks; extension of bullpen roofs to keep relief pitchers from getting hit with pop bottles and other missiles; more ventilation in clubhouses, particularly St. Louis, Philadelphia and Chicago; the field clear of fans after a game until all players have reached the dugouts; two passes to each game in each park in addition to the pair of tickets each player now is allowed to purchase, and minutes of owner's annual meeting so the players can see what took place and how each club voted on their demands.

Hutchinson said the American League player representatives had not discussed a rumored player demand for a six day week with Monday off.

Ralph Kiner, the National League representative, was not available for comment on the six-day week subject.

Frick Blasts Bonus Payments

By Joe Reichler

Philadelphia (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said yesterday there must be a "stop to the wild and crazy bonuses" to young players starting out in baseball.

Speaking after the conclusion of the joint meeting of the club owners of both major leagues, Frick said there was "unanimous feeling that some rule limiting outlandish payments to untied youngsters must eventually be written into the books."

But Frick added that despite discussion of the bonus rule no move was made to change the present setup which allows clubs to sign a player for a bonus and then farm him out for experience.

There has been criticism from some owners, including Bill Veeck of the St. Louis Browns, that some clubs have been spending large sums for bonus players in an effort to corner the good young players.

Mill Gives Widespread Publicity To Poconos

The forty-first of a series of articles dealing with industrial operations in Monroe County is presented today by The Daily Record. Aim of the series is to acquaint all citizens with what is produced here; how it is made, the type of people and skills engaged in such production and the economic impact of each industry on this region.

By James B. Gaffney

One of the leading publicists for the Pocono Mountains probably is Pocono Hosiery Mills, Inc., at 49 Prospect St., East Stroudsburg.

Advertisements of their men's hose reach all corners of the globe in supplements of Sunday newspapers, leading fraternal publications and various periodicals. And the word "Pocono" stands out prominently, for that is the trade name under which the stockings are sold.

Backing their product with the challenge the buyers try to wear holes in the socks in six months and get new ones in return, the company has been conducting a world-wide advertising campaign that this year is earmarked for the expenditure of $100,000.

Before the local mill became a mail-order house four years ago, it specialized in selling socks wholesale. But the mail business has been so extensive all wholesale contacts were dropped. Now, from the local office, about 250,000 customers from all the 48 states and in foreign lands receive shipments of socks and other garments from East Stroudsburg. The postage for one week alone totals about $1,500.

About 65 employees currently are working at the plant and turn out 20,000 pairs of men's hose weekly. Payroll tops $2,000 a week. Nine other manufacturers supply the local house with other men's garments, underwear, sport shirts, polo shirts, pajamas and women's socks and nylon hosiery.

Pocono Grange 1415 met recently and two new members were taken in, Mrs. Gilpin and Mrs. Hartman. At a future meeting five more will be taken into membership. The group adopted the Blue Cross Plan for the benefit of members. Contributions of those having birthdays this past month were paid into the birthday bank. The movie which was held at the school on June 26 was much enjoyed by those attending and the cost of same taken care of by further contributions.

On a recent Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Nellie Mosteller, deciding to visit at the home of Mrs. John Kane, walked in from her home with A. J. Christman, a first cousin of Mrs. Kane, a matter of some four miles. She enjoyed the experience and visit very much, although it was a longer walk than expected, and after supper, Sherwood Kane drove her home.

Mrs. Helen Starnes was pleasantly surprised one afternoon recently when school chums called at her home. They are Mr. and Mrs. M. Reede Holly, of Aruba, Netherlands West Indies, who are home on a visit to relatives in Newton, N. J. Mrs. Holly was Mrs. Starnes' bridesmaid at the latter's wedding. This is the first time they had seen each other in seven years.

Mrs. George Starnes has returned home after visiting with her daughter in Jersey City for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Meixner are spending this week with Mrs. Gravatt at their new home on the Old Sullivan Trail, near the Ira Hay home-stand.

Castle Inn Property Sale Recorded

Transfer of Ritter Castle Inn, Delaware Water Gap, to Manwalamink Inc., East Stroudsburg, was recorded yesterday at the courthouse.
